

Research question:

How can changes in human behavior be operationalized for simulations?

